

Life cycle

Habitat—Where does it live?

A tiger’s homeland is the Savannah. As the sun rises on a new day, dew glistens on the grasslands and buffalos yawn to wake themselves up. Under the blistering midday heat, the tiger makes its way to the waterhole to cool down. As the tiger settles down at night, he hears many different noises, stomp, hum and growl.

Animal

Tigers

What does it eat?

When a tiger is preparing to eat lunch, it uses its powerful front legs to bring down prey effortlessly.

Once the chase is on, the tiger is as fast as a rocket. Upon attack, it automatically extends its claws: needle-sharp, long and deadly.

Food chain

Grass

deer

tiger

Herbivore

carnivore

Producer

consumer

predator

Once you have planned your sections put it together in whatever way you choose!

Terrifying Tigers!

The tiger is the largest of the cat family. It hunts alone because it can take on a buffalo six times its size. They have the shortest necks out of the big cats but sharper teeth than their species.

Did you know tigers have retractable claws? Interestingly, tigers have enormous, meat-slicing teeth but no chewing teeth.